

Issue 3 www.xibitz.com 800.339.0288
For more information: lets_talk@xibitz.com

xibitz

Xsight

Yup...it's that time again! Here at Xibitz, we're excited to share a few details about this new project we've just wrapped up. We hope it will further illustrate the breadth of skills we're able to offer. From strategic planning and digital models to fabrication and installation. Dive on in!

One of the best things that came out of our collaboration with Progressive AE and Jubilee is this remarkable project that will be a model for future youth programs.

X: on this project:

- Complete Design and Development
- Development of all interactive games stations
- Successful collaboration with owners/architects
- Production & installation of all components
- Employment of value engineering
- Financial guidance and reporting
- On time and under budget

High Praise for Xibitz! Jubilee Youth Center

We received the call from Progressive AE back in June of 2004. Seemed they needed "a bunch of cool stuff" for a new project in sunny California. The Jubilee Christian Center in San Jose was looking to develop a dynamic, entertaining (and safe!) alternative space to local teen hang-outs. From a café bar and custom projectors to video spaces and a state-of-the-art soundbooth for rap competitions, we had a blast...and really enjoyed working with contractor LCM, as well as the Jubilee team.

An X-Box counter (left) provides intimate game space for small groups. This dynamic PS2 tower (center), shown here as a digital 3D rendering, was designed with a perforated metal tower that pulses light using Color Kinetics. X-Box stations (right) are permanently attached to a wild wall of graffiti. Other highlights: projection canopies, custom café seating, and acrylic I-Pod stations.

“Thank you for sharing your many talents on this project. Your vast knowledge of materials and fabrication techniques was invaluable and the quality of the items was excellent. The shop drawings and fabrication/installation schedule provided were outstanding as well. You successfully created the “wow” factor we were all looking for as well as giving Jubilee the most value for their money.”

- Keith Lundquist
President,
LCM